Die Mobilisierung unserer Gesellschaft trifft auf zahlreiche Entwicklungsprojekte mobiler Applikationen, die zunächst enthusiastisch begonnen wurden, letztlich aber gescheitert sind. Am Beispiel des Mobile Learning stellt Philipp Maske in diesem zweibändigen Werk heraus, dass Entwicklungsprozesse mobiler Applikationen von einem bisher unerforschten interdisziplinären Wirknetzwerk der Dimensionen Ökonomie, Technologie und Didaktik beeinflusst werden. Basierend auf diesem Wirknetzwerk wird ein Vorgehensmodell als Instrument der gestaltungsorientierten Wirtschaft konstruiert, dessen Nützlichkeit anhand einer Fallstudienimplementierung bewertet wird.

Animation in Context is an illustrated introduction to cultural theory, contextual research and critical analysis. By making academic language more accessible, it empowers animators with the confidence and enthusiasm to engage with theory as a fun, integral, and applied part of the creative process. Interviews with contemporary industry professionals and academics, student case studies and a range of practical research exercises, combine to encourage a more versatile approach to animation practice – from creating storyboards to set designs and soundtracks; as well as developing virals, 3D zoetropes and projection mapping visuals. Mark Collington focuses on a core selection of theoretical approaches that shape animation narrative, supported by a broader set of shared theoretical principles from the worlds of art, design, film and media studies. This discussion is underpinned by cross-disciplinary thinking on a range of topics including genre, humour, montage and propaganda. These are applied to the analysis of a range of animated films and projects from Disney and Animé, to independent artist-filmmakers such as Wendy Tilby, Amanda Forbis and Jerzy Kucia. These ideas are also applied to other uses of animation such as advertising, sitcom, gaming and animated documentary.

What’s a Cellphilml? explores cellphone video production for its contributions to participatory visual research. There is a rich history of integrating participants’ videos into community-based research and activism. However, a reliance on camcorders and digital cameras has come under criticism for exacerbating unequal power relations between researchers and their collaborators. Using cellphones in participatory visual research suggests a new way forward by working with accessible, everyday technology and integrating existing media practices. Cellphones are everywhere these days. People use mobile technology to visually document and share their lives. This new era of democratised media practices inspired Jonathan Dockney and Keyan Tomaselli to coin the term cellphilml (cellphone + film). The term signals the coming together of different technologies on one handheld device and the emerging media culture based on people’s use of cellphones to create, share, and watch media. Chapters present practical examples of cellphilml research conducted in Canada, Hong Kong, Mexico, the Netherlands and South Africa. Together these contributions consider several important methodological questions, such as: Is cellphilmling a new research method or is it re-packaged participatory video? What theories inform the analysis of cellphilmls? What might the significance of frequent advancements in cellphone technology be on cellphilmls? How does our existing use of cellphones inform the research process and cellphilml aesthetics? What are the ethical dimensions of cellphilml use, dissemination, and archiving? These questions are taken up from interdisciplinary perspectives by established and new academic contributors from education, Indigenous studies, communication, film and media studies.
